Visit georeentry.com today to learn more about our reentry programs and services.

GEO Reentry Services provides evidence-based treatment and supervision programs for individuals on parole, probation, or otherwise involved in the criminal justice system. Our structured and comprehensive programs promote successful reentry through a combination of treatment services, accountability, and links to community resources.

By combining research-based treatment and counseling services, GEO Reentry assists community correctional agencies with important community safety efforts. Because each agency faces unique challenges, GEO Reentry works closely with agencies to develop customized programs and solutions.

Services

Residential Reentry Centers

Residential reentry centers offer individuals a safe, structured, supervised environment, as well as employment counseling, job placement, financial management assistance, and other services. Our programs, several of which are American Correctional Association (ACA) accredited, offer valuable training to help participants address patterns of antisocial thinking and poor conflict management, enabling them to successfully reenter the community.

Non-residential Reentry Centers

GEO Reentry operates non-residential reentry programs for federal, state, and local corrections agencies to help individuals change their behavior and successfully transition back into the community, while helping agencies across the country focus on reducing criminal risk and recidivism.

In addition, GEO Reentry offers programs that support pretrial agencies and the judiciary to release individuals to community supervision while awaiting court proceedings.

In-custody Treatment Services

In-custody treatment programs are provided to individuals nearing the end of their sentence at state and county institutions. By assessing individual risk and needs and initiating programming while in prison, the transition to a community-based program is seamless and behavior change is expedited. Throughout the program, individuals work closely with a case manager to help identify and address negative behavior patterns.

Juvenile Services

Research demonstrates that reentry services and aftercare programs which connect youth with professional case managers, mentors, and employment/educations opportunities can reduce recidivism and improve their odds of success. Through a combination of individual counseling, family services, group treatment, and prosocial activities and workshops, these highly structured programs encourage cognitive skill-building and address individual risk factors, all while involving the family in treatment.

Measuring Outcomes

GEO Reentry programs and services reduce recidivism by targeting factors that contribute to criminal thinking and using cognitive behavioral treatment. Through collaboration with criminal justice leaders, industry researchers, former members of law enforcement, and community partners, we drive meaningful progress in reentry services. GEO Reentry measures program effectiveness and impact by examining three areas:

- Program Fidelity: measured by adherence to the principles of effective intervention
- Intermediate Outcomes: measured by participant improvements in real-time
- Recidivism Reduction: measured by return to custody (as defined by the agency)

Employment & Educational Partnerships

Employment is a critical component to the success of an individual's transition from incarceration to the community. GEO Reentry is committed to building and maintaining employment and educational partnerships to help our participants navigate and achieve long-term sustainability.

We partner with employers, non-profit organizations, staffing agencies, and educational institutions who want to provide second chances. Together, we can help reduce recidivism, boost economic growth, and impact community safety. These meaningful partnerships give participants the opportunity to learn new skills, provide for their family, and enhance self-esteem.
